

The following is a speech by H.H. Radhanatha Swami about changing ones heart (the bad dog and the good dog), delivered at the House of Parliament, in London. "It's not the thing that counts, it's the thought. It's the love that gives meaning to anything. Saints are meant to be used and people are meant to be loved. But unfortunately so many times we become so distracted that we love saints and we use people. Money and power and knowledge are great assets when they are used with compassion". The video is in High Definition and can be watched in full screen mode. To watch it without interruption let it buffer for a bit as the video is almost 90 (1:27:42) minutes long. The password is: ps